ABOUT

Romario O'Shane Hanson (born September 23, 1994), also known as Scrptiid, is a singer, songwriter, poet and aspiring actor. He is a native of Spanish Town, St. Catherine, Jamaica. Scrptiid's first love was poetry, which was inspired by his uncle who passed away when Scrptiid was just 14 years old. He, then, befriended his late uncle's friend, Teflon. In the bedroom studio with Teflon and Chronixx birthed the idea of artist name "Scrptiid". Once, afraid to let anyone hear his lyrics, the first real display of his gift took place when he entered a local talent show and 'wowed' the audience. Since 2013, Scrptiid has resided in the States and has been involved in some collaborations with fellow One Tribe member, Prodigy Rome. While his main inspirations are his late uncle and his father (who is a phenomenal lyricist), he also gets his inspiration from artists like Drake and The Weekend.

Other artists in which Scrptiid is relatedly & relatively influenced by are Vybz Kartel, Movado, Wizkid and Burna Boy. While Scrptiid doesn't restrict himself to any one genre, he crafts his music by infusing the sounds of dancehall, reggae, afro-pop, rock, and more.
